PUBLIC IS TO HEAR EVIDENCE IN CONVICT DEPARTMENT

Lacy Defalcation Centers the Thought of Alabama on Some of The Untoward Incidents that Have Marked the Present Administration.

Sunday's Mobile Register contains the following article about the conditions in the State just now, due to Lacy's leaving with all the spare cash in possession of the convict department.

Is scandal like a nemesis in pursuit of the O'Neal regime?

This question is being asked all over Alabama by friend and foe of the governor of Alabama.

An acute situation seems to have been developed by the immense defalcation in the state convict department, which is under the direct supervision of Governor O'Neal through his personal appointees. An inquiry is raised: Is this development a sporadic case or is it symptomatic of the inefficiency believed by some to lie beneath a large part of the present administration?

Business men generally in Mobile and throughout Alabama are amazed at the financial system in vogue in the state capitol, where a [illegible] ing business acumen are placed at the head of a department which handles hundreds of thousands of dollars, and where these are no checks on the men who control the state's money.

They are asking what is to blame for not having these financial agents properly bonded, and why it is that the president of the convict board was permitted to sign checks in blank and leave it to a unbonded clerk, who gambled and drank heavily and was known to have a "white light" devotee, to fill in the amount, any amount, as is proved, that he saw fit to write down.

Did O'Neal Know It?

They want to know if Governor O'Neal was aware of the system in effect in the convict department, of Oakley's habit of signing blank checks, and the private life of Lacy who made way with $[illegible] of the state's money.

A good many people in Mobile and in other parts of Alabama, whose memories are not short, recall the circumstances of the appointment of the president of the state council board, and the eye of fondness that was raised against him both before and after it was made; and these men are now saying: "Just as we expected."

When governor O'Neal was inaugurated, it is said that he was in the power of three men. P. G. Bowman of Birmingham, Jesse [illegible], former congressman from the Greenville district, and J. A. [illegible] former sheriff of Bibb county, those who lived in Montgomery during the first few months of the O'Neal administration, and the newspaper men who were habitues of the state capitol remember the gossip that was current as to the power these men had over the executive.

Brought Criticism on State.

Two of them, Bowman and Oakley, are considered as having done much to discredit the O'Neal administration. Both of them were appointees of the governor to positions of highest trust, responsibility and honor. It is now charged from one end of Alabama to the other that both of them were selected for these positions over the protests of the best citizens of Alabama, made in person to the governor. Therefore, in the current discussion and criticism of the Lacy scandal in the O'Neal regime, the governor is being held responsible for the actions of his henchmen.

During the past two or three days following the defalcation, well informed men in Mobile have been reviewing the O'Neal regime, and they find what they conceive to be one continuous series of untoward incidents all more or less directly connected with the executive, his office and his administration.

Executive Mansion.

At the outset the executive mansion was involved in scandal. It is said the bill appropriating $50,000 for this mansion was jammed through the legislature, when it was publicly stated on the floor of both houses that the state's income would not allow this extraordinary appropriation, without the curtailment of the appropriations to the old soldiers, to the state institutions, to the teachers, and to every other branch of the government to which the state contributed financial aid. To overcome this objection, Hon. Alex Pitts of Selma, speaking as the personal representative of the governor, assured the house of representatives that Governor O'Neal gave his word that not one cent of this fund would be touched "until the condition of the treasury justified it," and that it would not curtail the other appropriations in the least.

People in Montgomery, it is said, were amazed that the executive mansion committee, not long after the bill became a law, with Governor O'Neal as the head of the commission, should buy a Montgomery home from one Moses Sabel, even before the other appropriations were considered. They paid $45,000 for the home and some of its furnishings which, it is said, was an exorbitant sum, and then by a committee resolution voted Governor O'Neal the remaining $5,000 to spend for additional furnishings. The commission, it is said, was severely criticised for this loose method of doing business.

P. G. Bowman's Charge.

When P. G. Bowman was forced out of office for farming out the fees of his office, he publicly charged that Sabel, from whom the mansion had been bought, had substituted some inferior furnishings for those the commission bought; that Governor O'Neal had so informed him; and that Governor O'Neal in compromising the case with Sabel had "compounded a felony." Sabel was compelled to make restitution, but it is said that the governor has never answered the Bowman charge. The settlement was not made until after the Bowman exposure.

Having given the governor a handsome executive mansion, the legislature made an appropriation of $[illegible] a year for maintenance of it. The Montgomery Advertiser, a strong friend of the administration, under date of February 28, 1912, said, this was done "in order to give Governor O'Neal the benefit of additional income." It is said that lawyers of the great ability of Walker Percy held that this appropriation could not be lawfully made.

Bowman's Appointment.

P. G. Bowman's appointment as back tax commissioner of Jefferson county, raised a hue and cry and for no other act of his administration, up until the Lacy defalcation, was he so severely arraigned. Pressure was brought to bear on Governor O'Neal by prominent men in Birmingham and Jefferson county not to give Bowman this office. It is said that they told the governor that Bowman's character was such as to render him unfit for any office of trust and honor, and that with the great power wrapped up in the office of back tax commissioner Bowman would be a menace to the social and commercial prosperity of the community. It is even alleged that Governor O'Neal told these men to "prefer charges formally" in writing against Bowman." As Bowman is said to be a desperate man, none of the men who protested, cared to take this course; and Bowman was appointed. This appointment, it is said, led to the feud between the Governor and Walker Percy, of Birmingham, which was one conspicuous incident of the last legislative session.

It is well known that [illegible] Bowman [illegible] [illegible] powers of [illegible] Governor O'Neal [illegible] public sentiment [illegible] from the office [illegible] his career [illegible] would disgrace. The [illegible] to the Bowman-O'Neal [illegible] has added to the gaiety of nations by its exposures on the one [illegible] and its explanations on the other.

A MUSICAL TREAT.

A most interesting feature of the illustrated lecture at the Foster St. Methodist Church this evening at 7:30 by Colonel Margetts, of the Salvation Army, will be the musical side of the lecture. The lecture is full of beautiful scenes from start to finish. There will be 150 slides, and since there is such a variety of music throughout, there will be an excellent opportunity to hear some of the accompanied local singers in illustrated relief and songs which is a rare treat.

In addition to local [illegible] we have with us Lavie L. Van, a cornetist and baritone singer. Mr. Van is not a Salvationist, but a traveling salesman for one firm and a music man for his pleasure. He has probably sung in more churches, and various audiences, in byways and highways than any man in the south. He will at these services lead the congregational music on cornet, and also will sing "If I Were a Voice."

In the course of the illustrated lecture the following selections will be rendered:

1. Opening Hymn "Onward Christian Soldiers," by [illegible].
2. "My Country 'Tis of Thee."
3. "Nearer My God to Thee."
4. "Abide With Me."
5. "Safe in the Arms of Jesus."
6. "Some Day the Silver Chord Will Break."
7. "Jesus, Lover of My Soul."

RE-HEARING OF MURDERERS PETITION IS DENIED BY COURTS

Supreme Court Still of the Opinion Three Men in Montgomery and Three From Jefferson Are Guilty.

Montgomery, Ala., March 17.—Walter Jones, Arnold Gilmer [illegible] [illegible] will be executed [illegible] Governor O'Neal [illegible] [illegible] the Supreme Court [illegible] held Monday [illegible] same day.

Arthur Jones and Dr. Watson, of Jefferson county [illegible] [illegible] March [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Court of [illegible] Sayre.

Smith's application [illegible] will be considered [illegible] [illegible] Coleman, of Montgomery county, will be executed April 4. [illegible] application for a rehearing was filed in his case.

With the denial of [illegible] of the condemned men by the Supreme Court, the certainty of execution is strengthened, and the hope of life entertained by the doomed men now being by a slender thread. Preparations for the execution of the men have been completed by the sheriffs of Montgomery and Jefferson counties, and the shadow of the gallows looms darker and darker before the murderers.

Since the war between the states no white man has been legally put to death in Montgomery county, and Walter Jones and Arnold Gilmer will be the first to have this unhappy distinction. John Adams and Coleman Gerald are negroes.

Hung for Negro's Death.

Arthur Jones and William Watson will be the first two white men to be executed in Jefferson county for the murder of a negro. They were convicted of killing John Holman, a negro near Cat Mountain in Jefferson county. They were also believed to have been implicated in the wholesale series of murders which took place near Lewisburg in "Bloody Beat 22" of Jefferson county.

Walter Jones shot and killed Sloan Rowan, a Benton merchant in the smoking compartment of a Western of Alabama Railway coach as the train was leaving the union station here on the night of July 17, 1912. Jones used a shot gun and emptied both barrels at Rowan. He was [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] and was [illegible] before Judge [illegible] Brown in the criminal division of the Montgomery City Court.

Arnold Gilmer killed Mrs. Laurie [illegible] in a house on Monroe Avenue more than a year ago. Gilmer [illegible] under the influence of whiskey at the time and killed [illegible] [illegible] Gilmer [illegible] the house [illegible] a [illegible] present, he [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] execution.

GOOD ROADS MEETING.

Birmingham, Ala., March 18. (Special).—Probably the greatest good roads meeting in the history of the country will be held in Birmingham on April 21-26, when the National Good Roads Federation assembles. Great enthusiasm is being aroused all over the country in the interest of this convention. The local arrangement committees of Birmingham have commenced to plan extensive entertainments for the body. They are expecting at least 2,000 delegates from every state in the union to be present. Secretary Rountree has been instructed to send an invitation to the governors of every state and to [illegible] them to appoint fifty delegates to attend this Federation. Governor Emmett O'Neal has been requested to write a letter urging the governor to attend this convention. Mayor C. Evans will also join with the Chamber of Commerce, Business Men's League, Alabama Good Roads Association, Jefferson County Good Roads Association and other civic organizations in urging delegates to attend. It is believed that with all these invitations that at least fifteen or twenty governors will be in attendance. The Federation has for its object the consolidation of the various national good roads organizations and the prospects are that much good will be accomplished. The Pot-Latch Celebration which takes place at the same time will offer splendid entertainment for the delegates to the Federation.

Idle Negroes.

There never were so many idle negroes in Panama City as at present. The public places are crowded with them from morning until night, while the negro quarters furnish them lodgings, and resorts for gambling and other crimes.

It is high time that the town officials took steps to rid Panama City of this undesirable element. They will not work, and are a constant menace to the better class of negroes of this section who wish to work.

If employed, they will break their contract and take French leave without giving the matter a thought and their lawlessness in this respect but influences others of their color to commit other offences.

Panama City has heretofore enjoyed the reputation of being comparatively free from the idle, vicious negro. It is only recently that this class have begun to make this town their habitation.

There is a vagrancy law in this state and it should be enforced, but if the state or county officials will not attend to the enforcement of this law, the town council of Panama City should frame an ordinance that will cover the subject, and see that it is enforced.

Idleness begets crime. A criminal record is an objectionable and undesirable feature for any community and should not be tolerated. Let there be a house cleaning of vagrants.—Panama City Pilot.

ROBERTSON WHO IS IMPLICATED IN MURDER IS STILL AT LARGE

The Brackin Boys' Story Would Tend to Place Guilt on Robertson—Say Bloody Shirt was Caused from Handling Lloyd When Found.

The Robertson boy, who was implicated by the coroner's jury in connection with the Lloyd murder yesterday, when James Lloyd was found near Jellico with his throat cut, has not been captured. There have been no material developments in the case.

The ground around where the body was found shows signs of a scuffle, and all the blood was in one pool, showing that the deceased must have been held by one while another did the cutting. There were small splinters lying around with blood on every one, showing that the party committing the crime must have lingered around and whittled with the bloody knife.

Chas. Brackin, who, with his brother, Homer, is lodged in jail charged with the crime, tells the following story:

Chas. and Homer Brackin, the Robertson boy, Charlie Lee, and the deceased, James Lloyd, were together the night before. The boys started off to take Charlie Lee, who was drunk, to his home, leaving Lloyd and Robertson near a negro church. Later they were joined by Robertson. They then went in the direction of the church, finding the body. Chas. Brackin and Robertson took the body, Brackin at the head and Robertson at the feet, and carried it off some fifty yards, thinking he (Lloyd) was either drunk or sick. Chas. Brackin got some of the blood from the body on his shirt, thus accounting for the bloody shirt that was found in his possession. He claims that he was not present and does not know who did the killing.

The above story would put the actual killing on Robertson. Of course this is only Brackin's story, and it is thought that Robertson, when caught will tell a different tale.

Charlie Lee, when questioned by the coroner's jury, stated that he knew nothing of the crime until the body was found.

CHRISTIAN MARTYRS OR A TALE OF ANCIENT ROME

(Contributed by Capt. McAfee.)

CHAPTER VI.

The Cloud of Witnesses.

"These all died in faith."

The new convert soon learned more of the Christians. After a brief repose he rose and was joined by Honorius, who offered to show him the nature of the place where they lived. Those whom he had seen at the chapel service formed but a small part of the dwellers in the Catacombs. Their numbers rose to many thousands, and they were scattered throughout its wide extent in little communities, each of which had its own means of communication with the city. He walked far on, accompanied by Honorius. He was astonished at the number of people whom he encountered; and though he knew the Christians were numerous, yet he did not suppose that so vast a proportion would have the fortitude to choose a life in the Catacombs. Nor was he less interested in the dead than in the living. As he passed along he read the inscriptions upon their tombs, and found in them all the same strong faith and lofty hope. Those he loved to read, and the loud interest which Honorius took in these plain memorials made him a congenial guide.

"There," said Honorius, "lies a witness for the truth." Marcellus looked where he pointed, and read as follows: "Primitius, in peace, after many torments, a most valiant martyr. He lived about 38 years. His wife raised this to her dearest husband, the well-deserving."

"These men," said Honorius, "show us how Christians ought to die. Yonder is another who suffered like Primitius."

"Lanius was put to death in tortures, in order that he might live in eternal bliss."

"And there," said Honorius, "is the tomb of a noble lady, who showed that fortitude which Christ can always bestow even to the weakest of his followers in the hour of need."

"Clementia, tortured, dead, sleeps, will rise."

"We do not die," said Honorius; "we but sleep, and when the last trumpet shall sound we shall wake to be forever with the Lord. Here lies Constans, doubly constant to his God by a double trial. Poison was given to him first but it was powerless over him, so he was put to the sword."

"The deadly draught dared not present to Constans the crown which the steel was permitted to offer."

Thus they walked along, reading the inscriptions which appeared on every side. New feelings came to Marcellus as he read the glorious catalogue of names. It was to him a history of the Church of Christ. Here were the acts of the martyrs portrayed before him in words that burned. The rude pictures that adorned many of the tombs carried with them a pathos that the finest works of the skillful artist could not produce. The rudely carved letters, the bad spelling and grammatical errors, that characterized many of them, gave a touching proof of the treasure of the gospel to the poor and lowly. Not many wise, nor many mighty are called; but to the poor the gospel is preached. On many of them was a monogram which was formed by the initial letters of the name of Christ, "X" and "P" being joined so as to form one Cipher. Some bore a palm branch, the emblem of victory and immortality, the token of that palm of glory, which shall hereafter wave in the hands of the innumerable throng that are to stand around the throne. Others bore other devices.

"What is this?" said Marcellus, pointing to a picture of a ship.

"It shows that the redeemed spirit has sailed from earth to the heaven of rest."

"And what is the meaning of this fish that I see represented so often?"

"The fish is used because the letters that form its name in Greek are the initials of words that express the glory and hope of the Christian. I—(IOTA) stands for "Jesus," X—(CHI) for "Christ," O—(Omicron) and R—(Tau), for "the Son of God," and Z—(Sigma) for "Saviour," so that the fish symbolizes under its name "Jesus Christ, the Son of God, the Saviour."

"What means this picture that I see so often a ship and a huge sea monster?"

"That is Jonah, a prophet of God, of whom as yet you are ignorant."

Just as soon as Wilson got in and appointed a new secretary of war, you noticed that the little row over in Mexico seemed to cool off.

One paper heads an article on "Mexico Today," as if he has the very latest report.

You can't stress the need of a tooth brush too much. Three fourths of the people you meet would be rather pleasing in appearance but for their unkept teeth.

The Washington hotel keepers know that such a time comes but once in four years, and they proposed to make the best of it. They know that almost every one who goes to Washington at such a time, has something left after buying a railroad ticket, and they proposed to see how far it will go.

But for the glasses he wears, Secretary of War Garrison would be taken for William Randolph Hearst who lived in this country till he made too much money to stay at home and left for Europe.

We know that Wilson was bound to make some break that would subject him to criticism, matters not how lucky he has been in the past. Any one who looks at that crop of side whiskers of Secretary Redfield will resent it like a barber. And Old Hurleson of Texas, isn't far behind. He seems to have a weakness for letting them grow down in the temple about two inches lower than the latest style demands.

THE INHUMANITY OF MULTITUDES.

[illegible]

One morning about [illegible] o'clock, I [illegible] I asked the elevator boy what had become of the man.

"He died two weeks ago," was the response, "and his body was taken out after midnight and carried to the cemetery."

Here was this man who by every law of life and every creed of Christianity was my neighbor—my very nearest neighbor. I could almost hear him breathe at night through the intervening wall.

And yet he had sickened, he had suffered, he had gone through the agony or travail of death. He had been carried out in his midnight casket to the grave and his family had come back to the anguish and desolation of an unspeakable bereavement.

And I who was "this man's neighbor" had neither ministered to his suffering in life, stood by him in the hour and article of death, nor comforted the crowding sorrow of those who came back to his broken and desolate home—just within a foot of the light and love and laughter of my own—because in the rush of our big world I did not know.

I have never gotten over that incident. I never will. Something ought to be done about it. If something could be done.

We pay a fierce price for the joy of cities. Too many people make any one person unimportant, the crowds dwarf and minify individuals. In the multitudes we forget each other too often in life and in death.

When a man dies among two or three in a little community, it is a tragedy. It darkens the sky, it shadows the spirit, it bows the head in reverence and humility and sympathy.

But when one dies among five millions, the little gap made by the passing of the atom closes up so quickly from the mighty mass that it is difficult to remember that the atom ever lived or even died.

From which I came to say that the cities are not much of a place for old people who died. They should find a softer and a simpler life and a quieter place in which to meet the last great tragedy of life which is death.

I would like to live in a great city all my vigorous life.

EASTER SUNDAY

Is only a few days off, and if you want the very latest style in shoes come here and get them.

SHOES THAT FIT THE FOOT FROM

Up and are Guaranteed

One of the new Selz models for women.

YOU will realize, the minute you step into this shoe store, that it's a different kind of a store from any you've seen; you'll say it's your kind of a store.

In the first place, the shoes you see in our windows are the shoes you buy in the store; in the second place, you're just as welcome if you come only to look, as if you come to buy; in the third place, if you do buy our shoes, you get a guarantee of satisfaction that really means what it says. We're here to serve you; to fit you right; and to give you full value in shoe-service for every dollar you spend here.

You ought to see the new styles just in from the Selz factories; the styles that are making good in all the leading cities of the country; styles for the particular man or woman who dresses well and wants good looking shoes. Some better-than-usual children's shoes.

Whenever you are interested in shoes, to look at them, or to buy, we'll be glad to show you what we have.

If you would wear a shoe that's becoming to you, you must be coming to us.

HINTS ABOUT LAUNDRY WORK

Proper Way to Iron Table Napkins—Try This New Method on Your Shirt Waist.

Let the napkins stand for some time before pressing. Then shake them out, one at a time, and spread out perfectly square on the board, right side up. Avoid stretching the goods. Napkins should be ironed first on the right side, then on the wrong and back to the right until quite dry. [illegible] napkins iron the [illegible] the wrong side and [illegible] with the monogram on the [illegible].

In [illegible] shirt waists start on the [illegible]. Lay it in front of you, parallel with the edge of the board, and iron on the right side until partly dry, then turn to the wrong side and finish with the right side. This will give the [illegible] and gloss. Then iron the wristbands and other [illegible] parts, treating them the same way.

In pressing the sleeves fold them at the [illegible] and iron from the seam but not across the opposite fold, as this will form a crease down the sleeve which will look ugly when worn.

POINTS ON CURING MEATS

Process Should Begin From Twenty-Four to Forty-Eight Hours After Slaughter—Avoid Chemicals.

Meat should never be salted until the animal heat is out. The curing process should begin from 24 to 48 hours after slaughtering. This length of time insures perfect cooling and freshness. It should not be allowed to freeze.

Secure a clean, tight barrel, if a large amount of meat is to be cured. A molasses or syrup barrel does nicely. A small amount of meat may be cured in a stone jar. Often a housekeeper has an opportunity to buy cheap a piece of meat too large for one cooking. This may be cured for later use.

Salt, sugar and molasses are the safe preservatives. Borax, boracic acid, formalin and salicylic acid are considered by best authorities on the subject to be injurious to the health. The patent preparations which are on the market for preserving meat should be avoided. Saltpeter is said to give the meat a bright color. It, too, is considered harmful.—Woman's World.

To Prevent Mould on Pickles.

When your tub of pickles in bulk is [illegible] to the attack of mould it is a sign of excessive dampness in the cellar or storeroom where it is placed. To apply a simple remedy for this, place [illegible] of lime about the floor, [illegible] renewing it occasionally when it becomes moist and loses its strength. To remedy the mouldy pickles, [illegible] every particle of mould which appears on the top. It will scarcely be found elsewhere in the contents of the tub [illegible] and to boil the [illegible] replacing it with a few pieces of horseradish root [illegible] the pickles are being used [illegible] open vessels or vinegar pickles, as it [illegible] the strength and tends to ferment.

SONNY WAS ON JOB

By EDNA FERBER

In breezed Emma McChesney. Her quick glance rested immediately upon Meyers and th[e] b[o]y. And in that moment some instinct prompted Jock McChesney to shake his head ever so slightly and assume a blankness of expression. And Emma McChesney with that shrewdness which has made her one of the best salesmen on the road saw, and miraculously understood.

How do Mrs. McChesney grinned Fat Ed Meyers. You see I beat you to it.

So I see smiled Emma cheerfully. I was delayed. Just sold a nice little bit to Watkins down the street. She seated herself across the way and kept her eyes on that closed door.

Say kid Meyers began in the husky whisper of the fat man. I'm going to put you wise to something seeing you're new to this game. See that lady over there? He nodded discreetly in Emma McChesney's direction.

Pretty isn't she? said Jock appreciatively.

Know who she is?

Well—I—she does look familiar but—

Oh come now quit your bluffing. If you'd ever met that dame you'd remember it. Her name's McChesney—Emma McChesney and she's [illegible] A. Buck's Featherloom Petticoats. I'll give her her dues she's the best little salesman on the road. I'll bet that girl could sell a ruffled accordion plaited underskirt to a fat woman who was trying to reduce. She's got the darndest wa[y] with her. And at that she's straight too.

If Ed Meyers had not been gazing so intently into the hat [illegible] at the same time to look cheerfully [illegible] he might have [illegible] quick and painful [illegible] sweep the face of the boy [illegible] settled with [illegible] look of the muscles [illegible] the jaw.

Well now look here he went on still in a whisper. We're both shirt men you and me. Everything's fair in this game. Maybe you don't know it but when there's a bunch of the boys waiting around to see the head of the store like this and there happens to b[e] a lady [illegible] the crowd why it's considered kind of a professional courtesy to let the lady have the first lookin. S[ee]?

I get you [illegible] word Jock

I say th[at] [illegible] business and good manners [illegible] When a woman breaks into a man's game like this let her take her chances like a man. Ain't that straight?

You've said something agreed Jock.

Now look here Ed. When that door opens I [illegible] S[ee]? And [illegible] straight for the old man's office [illegible] like a luck [illegible] I may be fat [illegible] but I'm [illegible] they call light on m[y] feet and when I see [illegible] [illegible] from [illegible] file [illegible] [illegible]. Now [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] that [illegible] [illegible] word for [illegible] [illegible] You [illegible] old [illegible] like [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] himself [illegible] Ed Meyers [illegible] [illegible] both [illegible] feet [illegible] his [illegible] into his stom[ach] [illegible] dr[o]pped his h[at] [illegible] second later the door of old Sulzbe[rger's] [illegible] closed upon Emma McChesney's [illegible] smart [illegible] confident figure.—American Magazine.

Honorius then related the story of Jonah and showed him how the escape from the bowels of the fish reminded the Christian of the deliverance from the darkness of the tomb.

This glorious hope of the resurrection is an unspeakable comfort said he and we love to bring it to our thoughts by different symbols. There too is another symbol of the same blessed truth—the dove carrying an olive branch to Noah. He related to his companion the story of the flood, so that Marcellus might see the meaning of the representation. But of all the symbols which are used said he none is so clear as this and he pointed to a picture of the resurrection of Lazarus. There too said Honorius is an anchor the sign of hope by which the Christian while tossing amid the stormy billows of life holds on to his heavenly home. There you see the Cock the symbol of watchfulness for our Lord has said Watch and pray. There also is the lamb the type of innocence and gentleness which also brings to our mind the lamb of God who bore our sins and by whose sacrifice we receive pardon. There again is the dove which like the lamb represents innocence and yet again you see bearing the olive branch of peace. There are the letters Alpha and Omega which represent our Lord for you know that he said I am Alpha and Omega.

Canned Corn Fritters

Empty the contents of a can of corn into a colander run cold water over it to rinse off the liquid in which it was cooked and thus rid it of the tinny taste then crop the corn fine. Mix with two cupfuls of this a cupful of milk to which you have added a pinch of soda a tablespoonful of melted butter two beaten eggs two tablespoonfuls of flour and salt and pepper to taste. Drop by the spoonful into boiling fat drain on brown paper laid in a colander and serve hot.

Easy Pancake Baking

When pancake batter has been mixed pour it into a pitcher and from this pour it onto the griddle. It is much easier than using a ladle. The batter may be made light by beating in the pitcher with an egg beater.

TWO VALUES TO CERTIFICATE

Obtained From Teacher to Secure Position as Caddy, It Also Serves as Busines Recommendation.

The certificate of character that wins a boy a position on the golf links very often serves a double purpose. When the life of a caddy palls that same certificate is found useful in securing an office position. Some employers do not know what to make of that unusual recommendation.

'What's this?' said one man suspiciously to the boy who had applied for a situation. It doesn't say a word about your writing or spelling, or industry it just states that you can be relied upon as a faithful caddy. What has that got to do with holding a steady job?'

A whole lot said the boy. My teacher signed that. Most of the chaps up at the links have certificates of character from their teachers. If a fellow can be depended upon up there why can't he be depended upon down here?'

That was an argument that fetched that particular employer and it has fetched many another man to whom similar references have been presented.

George Meredith's Faith.

The English dramatist Alfred Sutro visited New York recently and in speaking of the late George Meredith with whom he was closely acquainted said

One incident of George Meredith's life has always impressed me. He was about to undergo an operation and had been told by his physician that the danger was considerable. He said nothing about it however. The night before he was to go under the knife he invited several of his dearest friends to dine with him. It was one of the jolliest little dinners of his life. The next day he was operated upon and he came through it safely. After it was all over he was asked if he were not afraid.

No he replied. I have the greatest faith in the kindliness of nature. I felt that whatever happened to this battered old cage of mine that the little bird fluttering inside it would come to no harm.—Youth's Companion.

Cholera and Tobacco

For a long time it has been noted that smokers are relatively immune to certain epidemic sicknesses especially cholera. Dr. Wenck professor of the Imperial Institute of Berlin has found that by manipulating cigars in water containing 1,000,000 cholera bacilli per cubic centimeter for twenty four hours. The same doctor has proved that tobacco smoke rapidly kills the cholera germ. In a tobacco factory in Hamburg not a single case of cholera was found among the workers during the last great epidemic though they lived in districts most affected by the plague.—Harper's Weekly.

GRANGE MIXTURE

Is The Best It Is Possible To Produce

In every industry, there are firms who lack the originality and the business foresight of selling their goods through good constructive argument. They believe, apparently, so little in the superior merit of their own productions that they resort to fault-finding with their competitor's wares.

Luck is Largely a Matter of YOU! We had a man come to us the other day wanting some Nitrate of Soda to put out right now. We believe in letting a customer decide for himself what sort of fertilizer materials he should use, but we intimated that he should use Grange Mixture for the first application, and then later on, if he found his crop needed it, he might put on an application of quick acting nitrate. This did not suit him; his idea, he said, was to use the nitrate now and let it push his cotton crop forward so he wouldn't have to work it!

If he follows that plan, when he goes to gather his crop next fall—Luck is going to be against him! The more fertilizer you put under your crop, the more you ought to work it. Isn't it foolishness to raise 500 pounds of seed cotton to the acre when you might raise twice as much? Just as much for gathering, just as much for [illegible], whether you raise ten bushels of corn to the acre or twenty. When David Dickson died, he left a Million Dollars. He made it farming in Georgia. He was the first Southern farmer to make that much money farming. When David Dickson was told that he spent too much money buying fertilizers, his answer was: "I don't mind spending a dollar, when I can get back a dollar and a quarter, or a dollar and a half for it."

Farmers who stop to think about the brand of guano they buy—save a lot of money on it. Of course you pay for the fertilizer and pay for putting it on. Bad or good it costs money. The other day a merchant who sells nearly a thousand tons of fertilizers every year—not the Dothan Guano Co's brands—bought fifty tons of Grange Mixture to put out on his own farms. It cost him more money than the other kind. People call him a skin flint. We don't believe it; he simply knows what will pay him best to use and he pays the price for it and uses it.

"THE THROSTLE"

'Summer is coming, summer is coming—
I know it, I know it, I know it.
Light again, leaf again, life again, love again.'
Yes, my wild little poet

Sing the new year in under the blue
Last year you sang as gladly
"New, new, new, new!" Is it then so new
That you should carol so madly?

'Love again, song again, nest again, young again,'
Never a prophet so crazy!
And hardly a daisy as yet, little friend,
See, there is hardly a daisy.

'Here again, here, here, here, happy year!'
Oh warble unchidden, unbidden!
Summer is coming, is coming, my dear,
All the winters are hidden.

Mrs. Trawick Gives Brilliant St. Patrick's Day Reception—

St. Patrick's Day was never more beautifully celebrated than on yesterday afternoon when Mrs. [illegible] Trawick's pretty home on [illegible] Main street was thrown open to her friends from four to six in honor of Mrs. L. N. Smith, Mrs. O. M. Sturgall and Miss Francis Sturgall.

The decorations of white and green so appropriate to the occasion made the apartments fresh and bright in their spring-like appearance. The beauty of the festoons of green and white from the chandeliers to the corners of each room further enhanced by the lighted tapers of green and white set in crystal candlesticks decorated with white tulle. Jardinieres of palm and ferns with the pretty touches of baskets and vases of white roses and hyacinths artistically carried out the refreshing daintiness of the color scheme.

Mrs. J. R. Malone and Mrs. R. [illegible] Ghent received in the hall and [illegible] by Mrs. S. A. [illegible], who led the way into the library where Mrs. [illegible] Trawick, Mrs. L. N. Smith, Mrs. Sturgall, Miss [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Mrs. [illegible] Mrs. N. M. [illegible] Mrs. [illegible] [illegible] Mrs. [illegible] and Mrs. [illegible] Dowling composed the [illegible] receiving party. Mrs. [illegible] invited the guests into the dining room where a [illegible] decorated with shamrocks was served by Mrs. [illegible] Jones and Mrs. Clifford Faircloth. The punch bowl amid a bower of ferns in the [illegible] room where the orchestra was placed behind a screen [illegible] [illegible] was presided over by Mrs. [illegible] Jordan, Mrs. [illegible] and Mrs. [illegible] Flowers. The [illegible] was daintily arranged with its [illegible] covers [illegible] green and [illegible] [illegible] filled with green mint and tied with fluffy bows of tulle. Mrs. [illegible] Cassmore and Mrs. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] tribute [illegible] Irish [illegible] shamrocks and pipes from [illegible] [illegible] green [illegible] basket.

The [illegible] [illegible] gowns worn [illegible] those who assisted made the [illegible] even brighter and more attractive.

Mrs. Trawick wore blue charmeuse with crystal overdress [illegible] pink Killarney roses. Mrs. Smith blue charmeuse with [illegible] overdress embroidered in gold [illegible] Killarney roses. Mrs. Strother, green charmeuse with hand painted overdress [illegible] black chiffon with sweet [illegible]. Mrs. [illegible] her wedding gown of white [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] overdress with [illegible] bouquet of sweet peas. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Mrs. Wilson yellow charmeuse with [illegible] overdress with yellow roses. Mrs. Hawkes of Coffee Springs in blue charmeuse with dew drop [illegible] [illegible] carrying yellow roses. [illegible] Pettis white duchess satin [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] white [illegible] [illegible] carnations Mrs. [illegible] [illegible] charmeuse with chiffon [illegible] and carnations. Mrs. Dowling of Ozark plaid crepe meteor with pink carnations. Mrs. Grant yellow crepe meteor and lace. Mrs. Jones white duchesse [illegible] over [illegible] Mrs. Faircloth yellow embroidered chiffon. Mrs. Jordan black charmeuse. Mrs. Sherman cream marquisette over blue. Mrs. Flowers [illegible] messaline with [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible]. Mrs. Harmon blue crepe meteor and lace. Mrs. [illegible] crepe meteor and [illegible]. Mrs. Malone grey crepe meteor and lace. Mrs. Ghent rose charmeuse [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].

CRACKSMEN IN NEW YORK GET AWAY WITH $80,000 WORTH OF DIAMONDS

New York, March [illegible].—[illegible] cracksmen who tunnelled their way through heavy brick and concrete wall working [illegible] set work of burglar alarm wires and stole $80,000 worth of diamonds from the safe of [illegible] Simmons and Son [illegible] shop on the lower East Side [illegible] [illegible] with them [illegible] a woman the police announced today.

This woman who [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] withheld lives in a flat [illegible] tenement adjoining the pawn shop. She told the detectives that she was going down stairs about 10 o'clock Saturday morning when she saw a man come up from the cellar of the tenement. He carried an [illegible] lump on his shoulder. She followed him to the street and saw another man drive up in a light wagon into the wagon the first man placed the lump. He then went back to the cellar and returned in a few moments with another lump and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] up in a bundle [illegible] he placed the [illegible] in the wagon and both men drove away.

The police [illegible] that the [illegible] are the men who chiselled through the walls of the tenements from the [illegible] to the cellar of the pawn shop. The brown paper [illegible] they [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] identify [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the pictures of criminal [illegible] there.

CHARLTON EXTRADITION TO ITALY

Washington, March [illegible].—[illegible] fight to save Porter Charlton from extradition to Italy for the murder of his wife at [illegible] Como on their honeymoon opened today in the Supreme Court when attorneys for Charlton filed their arguments. The court will hear oral argument probably the last of April. Much of the contention of Charlton's lawyers is [illegible] to showing that the United States government has no power either by [illegible]

Your Grocer Has the Genuine
Old French Market Coffee

Real old French Market Coffee—the National Drink of the South—can now be had at your grocer's in hermetically-sealed cans.

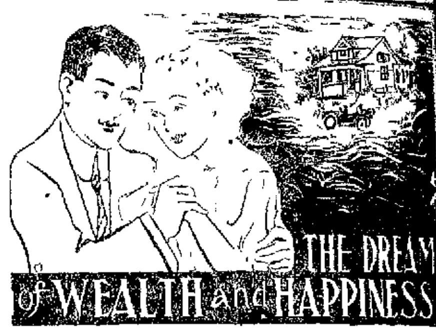

French Market Coffee

You can now enjoy at your own table, that famous blend that has been served for over a hundred years at the old French Market in New Orleans. Drink all you like of this coffee. It is roasted by a new hygienic process entirely different from ordinary coffee.

Market men in the French Market drink ten to fifteen cups a day of it. It has always been the custom to drink it—even at midnight—after the Mardi Gras balls.
